Sport in its many forms is one of the lively aspects of Canadian life. The National Film Board has tried to capture Canadians in sportive action, according to the seasons, the tastes and the regions of this broad land.

In this brochure, under the over-all heading of Sports and Physical Fitness, we list twenty-seven films that not only demonstrate the importance of sports as a leisure activity for some Canadians, or as a profession for others, but that actually portray in part the spirit of Canada and its people.

Some of the films are instructional; others simply seek to interest people in a particular sports activity; and still others reveal, through the perception of the talented film-maker, the grace and poetry inherent in many aspects of sport.
